Cottons—There was a decline in the market, but later there was an the amount of small lots changed hands, but no large transactions were reported. "Futures" were neglected, and such offerings as were made were at such low figures that sellers would not accept. The following is a resume of the daily sales and the condition of the market at the different periods of the week. Friday the market opened at 82 1/2, declined and no sales transacted. Saturday there was sales of 5,000 bales, 8,000 (October storage) at 82 1/2. Sellers were anxious to effect sales on this day, but buyers refused to entertain their rates and the market was left at a standstill. Monday there was a slight improvement in feeling and sellers were demanding higher rates, but buyers refused to pay, and there were no transactions.

Tuesday there was a slight reaction of 1,000 bales, changed hands at 82 1/2, an advance of 1/2 cent. There were also sales of 500 bales, No. 1, at 82 1/2. Wednesday buyers were offering freely but the future outlook was more favorable and sellers refused to entertain their views unless at an
